

2
Magnificent still a hall covered with carpets an outer room for placing the baggage in a chamber for perfumes another for ablution another for betel another for Sherbet and another for wine and says he "You shall answer with your office that every thing be ready that can possibly be asked for even to the Milk of a bird and the soul of a Man The steward im-mediately went and issued the strongest injunctions to all the servants to exert themselves and every person applied himself assiduously to his own business The Shah then desired Melech Mahommed to bear his respects to Ghete Afroz and tete her "Though it be presumptuous in a Mortal to pretend to entertain her who possesses whatever God has created yet my desire of her society is so great I cannot refrain from intreating her to illumine with the rays of her beauty My pantry stage though it should only be for a single hour The Princeps will pardon the presumption of her goodness for once to take a single look at our habitation Melech Mahommed immediately proceeded to the palace of