

sweet Basil, the hyacinth, and others of a similar species, were arr^{ang}ed in order, on their several banks, and channels of running water, were dispersed among the roots of the trees according to the Verse.

Thence the rivulet wanders slow
A thousand musky roses blow,
Where languid streamlets sleep between
The verdure wakes in livelier green,
While every rose a thousand tints,
Along its blushing leaves depaints
And as the glowing petals smile
Sweet ^{Syria} France makes for many a mile.

In this new Paradise of a garden, they halted, they pitched a tent under fortunate auspices, spread beautiful carpets, and displayed furniture, rich as that of Rhosroo, they illuminated the Tent, with a Lustre, and there the Princess Semen ruh took up her residence the report of their arrival reached Azur Shah and as the Poet Housret Mullah says.

The present precious moment seize,
When Fortune falls in every breeze,
And ere the Power have time to Coam
Bid her Yourself ^{invite} ~~invite~~ her home.
