

please Melech Mahommed looked up and saw that the whole house was illuminated with the brilliancy of the precious stones as when the sun emerges from the darkness of night. Every jewel seemed to outvalue the riches of the whole world and in comparison of their splendor his own seemed quite devoid of brilliancy. "What an arch blockhead am I thought he to have offended Gheta Afroz for such a trifle an hour passed away and the princeps did not condescend to look on the side of the house where he was Melech & Mahommed then bent down his eyes on the ground and began to weep and wail bitterly till at last the princeps was melted and began to be sorry for the words she had uttered. Melech Mahommed said she how would you find in your heart to speak to me so unkindly and now you are like to break your heart at the harsh speech which you yourself provoked. He replied. -

Ah! what a luckless fate is mine
Doomed mid untasted joys to pine
Ah who could dream that cruel pride
Should on that charming lip reside
Bitterness and gall have chased
The ripe the fresh pistachio's taste
She