

Chete Afroz has no doubt behaved improperly but as she hopes for pardon from the generosity of the Shah she is ashamed to raise her voice in his presence.

He honours not the Lord of day Who lauds the brilliance of his ray Nor shall disgrace accrue from him Who says that notes in sunbeams swim No speck can dim the rays divine That round the sun of empire shine But since so noble a personage as King Anushah is to be her guest it is probable that she may have made proud promises and that the expect--tation of every eye is turned upon her to disappoint her at this time by frustrating her promise would be to cover her with indelible dis-grace Anushah too would perhaps say Anwar Shah refuses to grant you the Musicians and performers and you falsely boasted of what you could not perform. Now there can be no doubt but that she has expected from your generosity that the perfor-mers with there Musucal instruments arrayed
